THE South-Carolina Gazette.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Foreign and Domeſtick.

From SATURDAY Auguſt 29, to SATURDAY September 5, 1741.

LONDON, June 16.

THE laſt Letters from Portugal adviſe, that they are under great Apprehenſions of a War between the Court of France and that of Great-Britain; and that the ſame will be attended with bad Circumſtances to that Nation, who, however, will keep Themſelves from being involved therein.

We hear that Protections will immediately be granted to ſeveral Merchant Ships outward-bound.

We are aſſur'd, that the Men of War that lately ſail'd from Cadiz are arriv'd at Ferrol, where they are to be join'd by others, but that 'tis not believ'd they will go to America. Thoſe Nine Ships are the

The ſeveral Regiments of Horſe and Foot, &c. that are to embark for Flanders, have received Orders to encamp by the 30th of this Month near Colcheſter.

June 20. Thurſday Advice was brought, that the Naſſau, Capt. Spilman, bound from Falmouth to Leghorn, had fallen into the Hands of the Spaniſh Fleet, and was carried into Cadiz.

They write from Leghorn, that they have Advices there which aſſure them that Kouli Kan has declar'd War againſt the Porte, and actually ſent two Armies, one to Beſſora upon the Tigris, and the other to Kars, which is ſituate between Erivan and Erveron; the laſt of which Places is 8 or 900 Miles from the firſt.

We hear that the fifteen Men of War under the Command of Sir John Norris, are taking in a large Number of Marines, and ſeveral more are to be put on board Tranſports, which in the whole will be 8000, all which will ſail in a few Days for the Mediterranean, to join Admiral Haddock, and then go upon ſome Expedition.

It's reported, that his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland will again go on board Sir John Norris's Ship, as a Volunteer.

The John & Mary, Troy, from Lizbon for Dublin, was taken and carried into St. Sebaſtian's.

Extract of a Letter from Falmouth, June 4, to a Gentleman at Briſtol.

'The Bonetta Sloop of War that we ſaw in the laſt Papers to have taken a French Veſſel, laden with Spaniſh Iron, and carried her into Oporto, was immediately diſpatch'd from thence (without giving them an Hour to prepare for ſailing) for the firſt Port in England. She arriv'd off our Caſtle laſt Night, after a Paſſage of eight Days, and brings Advice, that Nine Sail of Spaniſh Men of War which were at Cadiz, and ſeveral more at Ferrol, with three Frigates, ſail'd from the latter Place, to cruiſe in the Chops of our Channel, in order to intercept our Homeward-bound Eaſt-India Men. You will have this confirm'd in a Poſt or Two after this reaches you. The Expreſs was immediately forwarded from hence, and the above Sloop proceeded for Plymouth this Morning. She confirms the taking the above French Veſſel; and that there were three Spaniſh Generals on board her. I preſume the above Affair is a Piece of News little expected; and I believe not agreeable, as no doubt but they will pick up many of our Homeward-bound Veſſels, and prevent others from going abroad.

...ekly Miſcellany, No. 435.

THE next ... offer to Mr. Weſtley's Conſideration is his Behaviour to Mr Whitefield, in forbidding him the Uſe of his Pulpit upon his own Principles. He was an old Acquaintance, bred up to the ſame Enthuſiaſtick Way, and well qualified to do a great deal of good or Miſchief, and now he muſt be caſt out as a Reprobate by one, who denies the Doctrine of Reprobation. When Mr. Whitefield came from Georgia, and preached at the Foundery, his Text was, O foolish Galatians, who hath bewitched You? The Meekneſs and Humility of Mr. Weſtley was greatly provoked on this Occaſion, leſt his Hearers ſhould take him for a Conjurer, (which he utterly denies) that he excommunicated him accordingly. And ſo Satan caſt out Satan. But when they two made ſuch a Diſturbance in the City of London and elſewhere, that the Clergy for Peace and Quietneſs Sake were forced to forbid them their Pulpits, this was cried out upon by them both in the moſt heinous Manner; and how can Mr. Weſtley juſtify that in himſelf, which he ſo much blamed in others? The Clergy acted comformably to the Laws, which forbad to preach without ſhewing their Licence. But theſe make no Licence at all neceſſary. According to them, every one may preach, who pretends to have a Call to it, as much as ever it was in Uſe among the Quakers. Among them Women may preach or holdforth, Soldiers, raw Boys, and others may ſet up Conventicles for themſelves, as it is known that they have done, And nothing is more frequent than ſuch Practices among them. Thus if any Romiſh Emiſſary can learn the Art of Methodiſm, nothing hinders, but that he may ſet up for himſelf. And if a Popiſh Prieſt may be admitted, why ſhould Mr. Whitefield be excluded? The poor Man left all his Flock in Georgia, when there was no Shepherd to take Care of them in his Abſence. After they had been ſo long under his Care, they might go to the Devil if they would. It was the ſame Thing to him. He had another Call. He came into England above a Month ſooner than was expected, becauſe he would not loſe his Eaſter-Box; ſo that he was in hopes of bringing his extempore Effuſions to a better Market. Mr. Weſtley thinks, that this is not right, becauſe in ſuch a Caſe, there may not be enough for them both. He muſt eat the Fat of his own Lambs, and the Flower of the Wheat, and drink the pure Blood of the Grape, whilſt the other muſt gather Stubble inſtead of Straw, wherever he can find it, and yet his daily Task muſt not be diminiſh'd. Poor Mr. Whitefield muſt go to the Gallows at Kennington Common for what he can get there, and bring his Followers after him. And whilſt Mr. Weſtley hath the full Vineyard, the other muſt be content with the Gleanings of the Vintage. Now let Mr. Weſtley conſider, if this is ſerving his Brother and Fellow Companion, as he would be ſerved himſelf. And if not, let him admit him into his Fraternity again, before he ſets up for himſelf. For otherwiſe two of the ſame Trade can never agree, but one will be apt to ſpoil the other.

[To be concluded in our next.]

Charleſtown, Sept. 5. By Capt. Barett from Providence, we hear, that a large Rhode Iſland Privateer commanded by Capt. Norton had put in there, who not long ſince exchang'd 14 Broad ſides with the Spaniſh Privateer Sloop that had 135 Men: That Capt. Norton telling his Men if they fir'd one Gun more at the Spaniard, he would ſwear Piracy againſt them, they were oblig'd to deſiſt, and let her proceed with Five Prizes a ſtern, among which they knew one to be the Sea flower, Capt. Michael Gould, bound from hence for St. Kitts: That Capt. Norton had re taken the Sloop belonging to Mr. Thomas Hadaway: And that on Capt. Norton's Arrival in Providence, he had his Maſt and both his Gunnels ſhiver'd to pieces, by Lightning, which alſo fir'd off all his ſmall Arms loaded with Partridge ſhot.

We hear, that the Ship mentioned in our laſt without Top-Maſts is ſince arrived at Georgia. That on her firſt appearing off that Place, the General ſent out two Boats, who upon haling the Ship were fir'd upon by the Spaniards, ſo that they were oblig'd to make the beſt of their Way back; in the mean Time the Spaniards, to the Number of 30, (perceiving where they were) took out the Boats belonging to the Ship, and rowed away to St. Auguſtine, firſt making two Holes tho' her Bottom.

The Polly, Capt. Wm. Henry, and the John & Wm. Capt Brown, both bound for Cork, and the Sybil Capt. John Brown for Lisbon, were all taken by a Spaniſh Privateer the Day after they ſail'd from hence.

His Majeſty's Ship the Phenix, Capt. Hanſhaw, is ſail'd on a Cruiſe.
